bribe an official to secure the sales of machines which belonged not to him, but to the corporation of which he was president, and from which he was to receive a salary, not dependent upon the sales made by the corporation. To infer that Green had agreed to pay Beavers his own money to promote the business of the corporation would be to ascribe to him an altruism which seldom attached in common experience to officials of corporations.

"But it is unnecessary to discuss whether the more reasonable inference from the whole testimony is that the alleged unlawful agreement was that Beavers should receive Green's money, or the money for the Time Recording Company. If reasonable men may fairly differ upon the question as to which is the proper inference from all the facts, the determination of the matter is for the jury. It is only when the facts are such that all reasonable men must draw the same conclusion from them that a verdict should be directed by the court.

Motion Is Overruled.

"From the proof adduced by the Government, and assuming them to be true for the purposes of this motion, it seems to me, to say the least, that reasonable men might justly infer that the agreement between Beavers and Green was that Beavers should receive the money for the Time Recording Company, and that the product of that agreement was the product of that agreement.

"The motion to direct a verdict of not guilty is therefore overruled.

Following the decision of the court upon the motion to direct a verdict, a vigorous effort was made by the defense to secure from A. A. Birney, who was counsel for G. W. Beavers at the time he pleaded guilty, the substance of a conversation alleged to have occurred between Mr. Birney and District Attorney Baker. The conversation was described by Mr. Worthington, for the defense, as having relation to Beavers' plea of guilty. Mr. Worthington said the purpose of the tender was to attack the testimony of Robert J. Wynne, former Postmaster General and consul general to London, by endeavoring to show bias and prejudice on the part of that witness.

Mr. Worthington Excited.

Mr. Worthington was earnest and vehement and became almost excited in the course of this discussion. He said the conversation between Mr. Birney and Mr. Baker would indicate the motive of Mr. Wynne in the whole transaction.

"I want to show," he said, "that Mr. Wynne played upon the fears of Beavers and took advantage of Beavers' weakened condition—mentally, bodily, and financially, to induce him to enter a plea of guilty in this particular case."

"I want to show that Mr. Wynne threatened Beavers with punishment if he did not follow the suggestion, and organized him immunity from other persecution if he did."

"I want to show that Mr. Wynne arranged to have Beavers enter his plea here, in the presence of the two men who were to pass ultimately upon the guilt or innocence of this defendant."

However, Mr. Birney was not allowed to give his testimony.

The court held that Mr. Birney's information on this subject was secured in the course of his professional employment and, therefore, was not admissible.

Green's Character Upheld.

The defense next entered upon the introduction of a long line of witnesses to prove the good reputation of the defendant, Green, for honesty and probity. These witnesses were from Birmingham and had known the defendant intimately for many years. They all gave Green the brightest recommendation. This line of witnesses included Judge C. E. Martin, retired, or New York State Court of Appeals; Justice Nathan L. Miller and George P. Lyon, of the State Supreme Court; Mayor Hiram H. Woodburn, former Mayor George C. Woodley, former Lieut. Gov. Edward F. Jones, assemblyman, or New York; former president of the common council, Clarence M. Slauson, Aldermen Joseph Clark DeWitt C. Herick, Walter, City J. Simmons, Rev. Dr. J. W. Phillips, First National Bank, Col. George O'Neill, Carroll E. Reynolds, E. C. Delavan, George Fowler, F. Newell, Gilbert, and G. Tracy Rogers, all of Birmingham Railway Company, and James E. Waite.

STRONG AS STEEL

The Kind of Nerves That Can Do Things.

A young athlete writes concerning the method by which he acquired steady nerves, and also of some good missionary work he has done.

"About a year ago," he says, "my nerves began to go unsteady and I found myself troubled with sleeplessness. I set an enquiry on foot, and became convinced that the trouble and determined to quit it right there.

"So I got a package of Postum Food Coffee and Mother and I prepared it. We did not boil it long enough the first time and were not much impressed by it. The second time, however, we followed the directions carefully and were more than pleased with the result.

"I can sleep like a log now, since I am using Postum, my nerves are as strong as steel, and my muscles, which used to be easily, are hard and enduring as iron. Heavy athletics no longer give me pain in the side and chest as formerly.

"I have brought my whole family to use it, and it has done every one of them good. My father has found his asthma almost entirely relieved since he gave up coffee and began to drink Postum. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Gay Colors, Gold Buttons, and Whalebone All in One $25 Vest.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Some curious clothes are on exhibition at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel by the Merchant Tailors' Exchange. Their cost is almost equal to that of an Easter bonnet. Plain buttons have been replaced by tiny gold affairs, richly inlaid or enameled. Whalebone keeps the swager long-front points from curling upward, and the tailors say that $25 is not too high for the proper thing in an Easter vest.

ICE-JAM ON HUDSON FLOODS ALBANY

Water Covers Railroad Tracks and Railroad Traffic Is Much Delayed.

ALBANY, March 5.—A solid jam of ice, extending from Castleton to Coeymans, has caused the Hudson river to eleven feet above the mean low water level and flooded the docks in Albany and Troy.

The ice in front of the city went out yesterday for the second time this year. The break-up extended as far south as Coeymans, where the ice held and caused that which came down with the current to form a gorge which soon filled the entire channel as far north as Castleton. The water in the river, unable to penetrate this close packed mass, found an outlet around through Schoharie creek.

All the streets along the river front in Albany and Troy are flooded and the trains have to plow through water which is several feet deep. The Erie Railroad locomotives and put out the fires. At present the freight is stationary, but several passenger trains have been delayed. The Mohawk, near Schenectady, gives way.

FORTS AT NEWPORT WILL BE ATTACKED

Submarines to Test Their Vigilance.

SHARK DISPLAYS ENDURANCE

Makes Run of Five Hundred Miles on Gasoline Engines Alone and Finishes Strongly.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 5.—Lieut. Charles P. Nelson, U. S. N., the young naval officer who persuaded President Roosevelt to journey with him under the waters of Oyster Bay in the submarine, Porpoise, will put his craft through a remarkable series of tests off this port this week.

Lieutenant Nelson in the Porpoise and Lieutenant Shapley in the Shark will make night attacks upon Forts Adams and Greble and the naval torpedo station. Both submarines will run submerged and awash. Powerful searchlights will be thrown on the waters of Newport Bay with the hope that the defenders of the forts will be able to pick up the boats.

Practicing Under Water.

Extensive tests have been outlined for both boats under the supervision of Commander Albert Gleaves, of the torpedo station. Both submarines are making trials under water and have begun target practice with Whitehead torpedoes.

Official reports show that the Shark completed over 500 miles over the measured mile course in Narragansett bay recently with her gasoline engines alone, after running for five days, and devoting eight hours each day for the trials. This was done to demonstrate what the submarine can do in the way of depending on its gasoline engines in case there should be trouble with the electric engines.

Reliable and Seaworthy.

The Shark ended her trials without showing any signs of disorder with her engines or parts below and proved herself reliable and seaworthy in every respect.

It is pointed out here in naval circles that the majority of the foreign navies have been constantly experimenting and adding to their flotillas of submarines while the United States Navy has done little or nothing in this line for the last year. The estimates for the British navy for the fiscal year show an unusually large number of submarines completed last year and to be built during 1906 and 1907.
